Author's Note:

Takes place during season 2
Alternate Universe - no upside down
Alternate Universe - No powers
Part 2 is Homecoming, but they could both be stand
alones so it doesn't matter what order you read them
in! (Homecoming is apart of Girl In Red diaries)

New town, new car, new friends

Max closed her locker, she was nervous. The Max Mayfield was nervous. Today was her first day at Hawkins Middle School. She looked over at the group of five. They looked so close and happy together. She wished she could have that.

New place, try to fit in

She sat alone at the lunch table. Max never liked school lunches in California and she sure as hell didn't like them in the middle of fucking nowhere. She wished Billy could bring her food. He promised to take to a restaurant after school for surviving her first day.

And I've never been the best at talking

The ginger looked over at their table. They had a seat empty. Maybe she should go and ask to sit with them. What if they didn't want her there? No, she should at least try. By the time she decided, the bell rang. She had lost her chance.

Lockers and lunches here

She had science with all of them. They were sitting in a little group talking and laughing. After the teacher introduced her, she went and sat in the back immediately. She kept up her 'I don't give a shit' addittude.

The girls are all so weird

Max stated to the car. Billy gave her a warm smile. "Hey Red, how's your first day?" Max glared at him angrily. "That bad, huh?" She nodded, frowning. "No one talked to me!" She sniffled, looking at her brother with teary eyes. "Hey, it's okay! It's only your first day Madmax. Here, let me take you to that little dinner we saw."

"They only sell ice cream."

"Nah, they sell burgers too."

And I've never been the best at talking

They pulled up to scoops ahoy. A cute little sailor theme dinner. The two walked inside and up to the counter. Max smiled softly at the dirty blond who was behind a guy with poor hair. "Ahoy!" The man bellowed, "I'm Steve Harrington and I'll be your server today. What can I get ya?" Max giggled slightly at the girl who was mocking Steve behind his back. Steve furrowed his brows in confusion. He looked at where the ginger was looking and rolled his eyes. "Thanks Robin."

"No problem little Steveie! I'll be here all week!"

Billy chuckled at the two teens in front of him. "Max what do you want?"

"Ah so this is Max."

Max hid behind her brother shyly. Billy chuckled. "Yeah, she's a little shy. Had a rough first day." Steve frowned at the girl. "Well she's gonna be the coolest kid in eighth grade then!"

"Yeah, and why's that??"

" 'Cause she had the two coolest high schoolers as her friends!" Robin laughed behind him. Max looked up at them with a hopeful look. Billy smiled, "damn Right! Everyone's gonna wanna be her friend."

But I saw you across the room

Max sat at the table, happily eating one of the best damn burgers she's had since she left Cali. She watched silently as Billy flirted with Steve. Out of the corner of her eye, she could see the group she saw at school. She could also see a tall, rain haired boy walking towards her.

Said hello and that I'm new

"Hi, I'm Mike." Next to him was the most beautiful girl Max had ever seen in her entire life. The brunette smiled softly at her. "Hi, I'm Max." She smiled at them. "Why're you sitting alone?" The brunette asked curiously. Max frowned slightly, "oh well I'm new to town and have no one to talk to." She shrugged as she took another bite of her burger. It was still warm and oh so juicy. She couldn't get enough.

And I swear there's something about you

Max looked up at the two teens laughing. "What's so funny?" She asked frowning. Were they laughing at her? Fear filled her eyes. The other girl calmed down before pointing to her own lip. "You have something right here." Max's hand immediately went to her face, smudging the ketchup and making the mess worse. The tall brunette giggled before grabbing a napkin and cleaning Max's face. The ginger prayed that the beauty in front of her couldn't see the blush on her face. "There! Good as new!" Did this girl know the affect she had on people, "I'm El, by the way." 'Beautiful name for an even more beautiful girl' she thought. El blushed wildly as Mike chuckled. "Oh shit, did I say that out loud?" The two teens both nodded. If Max wasn't already embarrassed, she sure as hell is now.

So do you wanna hang out?

"Would you like to sit with us?" Mike asked.

Max looked to her brother, then El and Mike, then to the group at the table. She thought before nodding.

Maybe we can make out

El smiled warmly before grabbing Max's hand and pulling her over to her friends. "Hey guys! This is Max, she's hanging with us now!"

Heard you like music

A small boy with a bowl cut smiled at her. "Hey Max, I'm Will." He said politely. Before the other two boys could respond, Robin, Steve, and Billy walked up to their table with plates. Max immediately went to her brothers side. "It's only been five minutes shitbird!" He laughed, hugging her tightly.

Hey, me too

"We're picking up five up at seven tomorrow! If you're not by the door, we're leaving without you." Steve said stealing a fry from the curly haired boys plate.

Don't know if you're busy

Max went over to El. "What tomorrow?" She whispered to the brunette. "Oh we're going to the pool tomorrow! Wanna come?" El asked sweetly. Max looked around at the faces of people she didn't know. She shook her head. The girl barley went anywhere without Billy. "Don't worry! I'll be with you the whole time. Your brother can come too!" Max hesitated before nodding.

Don't know if you like me

"Okay great! Don't worry, they'll like you." El whispered holding her hand. A boy who had big brown eyes smiled at her.

Don't know if it's weird

Max could feel the blush spreading. She gripped the pretty girls hand tightly. Maybe this town wasn't so bad after all.

But I kinda do like you

*This small town thing's not as bad as I thought
So do you wanna hang out or not?*
